Director of Clinical Services Speaking at Breast Cancer Symposium

FORT WAYNE, IND. – Marsha Haffner, M.S.Ed., Cancer Services of Northeast Indiana’s director of clinical services, is speaking at Lutheran Health Network’s Breast Cancer Symposium: From Screening to Survivorship at the Grand Wayne Center on October 8.

Haffner is joining an extensive line-up of local cancer experts to share information about best practices for support services for people with cancer and their families. She will also share information about the innovative and high-quality services and programs available at Cancer Services. Haffner leads Cancer Services client advocate team and has her master’s degree in counseling and more than 15 years of non-profit management experience.

The Breast Cancer Symposium is a free event that is open to the public. It features local cancer experts for a day of informative and helpful sessions about breast cancer. Attendees will learn about screenings, diagnosis, treatment options and support resources. A continental breakfast and lunch will be provided for attendees.
